

Media Release:

19.11.2007

Free Big November Night at Alice Springs Desert Park

The Friends of the Alice Springs Desert Park and staff from the Park invite the Alice Springs community to once again join them for the Big November Night to help celebrate another successful year.

Park Manager Gary Fry said the public will be able to visit the Park with free entry this Friday 23 November 2007, from 6:30 to 9pm.

“The Big November night will be bigger and brighter than ever this year, and is our way of thanking the local community for their support over the year,” Mr Fry said.

President of the Friends Group Ken Johnson said The Big November Night is a family night for local residents and visitors to come along and enjoy live entertainment, activities for children, food and drinks.

“There will be various live musical performances throughout the evening including bands Fly 990, Scozzy and Drum Atweme,” Mr Johnson said.

“Jeff Robinson will also be performing in the courtyard and we will have films by StoryWall in the cinema.

“For the children we have lots of different activities, including story telling by John Chisholm, face painting and a visit by Yamba the Honey Ant.”

This year for the first time there will be some market stalls, making it a great opportunity to do a little shopping before Christmas. There will also be competitions around the Park including the opportunity to win a Voyages Hotel & Resorts Central Australia holiday package.

Ends

Media Note – For more information contact Gary Fry on 8951 8788

Issued: 4.20pm Monday, 19 November 2007