

Northern Territory Government

Department of Natural Resources, Environment and the Arts

MEDIA RELEASE

Free Entry to Desert Park for Big November Night

The Friends of the Alice Springs Desert Park invite the Alice Springs community to join them at the Desert Park for the Big November Night to help celebrate another successful year.

Park manager Gary Fry said public will be able to visit the Park at night with free entry on Friday 17 November from 6.30 to 9pm.

“We would like to say thank you to the local community for their support this year and invite them to help celebrate at this years Big November Night,” Mr Fry said.

“The Big November Night is a family night for local residents and visitors alike where you can enjoy a marvellous night of live entertainment, activities for children, food and drinks.

“There will be activities and events spread across the Park and people will have the opportunity to see the Nocturnal House at night, meet Desert Park staff and enjoy the screening of a variety of entertaining films.

“Yamba the Honey Ant will make a special appearance from 6:30 and there will be activities in the Nocturnal House for kids.

“Films will be shown in the cinema all night featuring central Australia in many of its guises, supported by some local independent film makers.

“There will also be music in the courtyard and the storytelling by the Alice Springs library.

Mr Fry said the Territorian Pass was still available for locals who receive unlimited access for 12 months to the Alice Springs Desert Park all for the price of one admission fee.

“Don’t forget you can get your Territorian Pass – a Christmas gift that lasts a whole year,” he said.

“The Big November Night is a fantastic opportunity that only comes around once year so mark it in your calendar now and let the Friends of the Alice Springs Desert Park say thank you to you.”

Ends

Media Note – For more information contact Gary Fry on 8951 8713.

Issued: 12:15 Thursday, 9 November 2006